Subject: Unauthorized use of Bombardier's Learjet Domain Rights

Dear Mr. Hamish:

I am a lawyer with Bombardier Inc. in Montreal, Canada. Bombardier Inc. is the owner of the Learjet name, which has been used extensively in connection with our well-known business jet and related consumer merchandise.

We have recently been made aware of your ownership of the Learjet.us domain name.

We are writing to let you know that the rights to the Learjet name/trademark, brand and designs pertaining to Learjet are the exclusive property of Bombardier. The Learjet name is part of the intellectual property of Bombardier. As you may appreciate, Bombardier's intellectual property is a valuable asset and Bombardier takes the management and protection of its intellectual property rights seriously.

Any unauthorized use of Bombardier's protected materials is an infringement of Bombardier's intellectual property rights, and can weaken our intellectual property, which we are sure that this is something you did not intend.

To resolve this matter, we are asking that you:

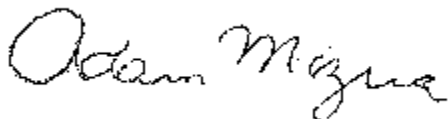

1. Cease any further unauthorized use of any Bombardier intellectual property;
2. Refrain from putting any material on the learjet.us website;
3. Transfer the rights to the learjet.us domain to Bombardier; and
4. Provide Bombardier with written confirmation that you will no longer engage in the unauthorized use of any Bombardier intellectual property and that you have complied and will continue to comply with the foregoing.

Bombardier expressly reserves all rights, recourses, and remedies it may have at law and/or in equity in respect of any claims, demands, damages, losses, costs or expenses related to any unauthorized use of Bombardier's intellectual property made by you.

Bombardier looks forward to hearing from you at your earliest convenience, and hopes to hear from you no later than September 3, 2021. Please address the response to Adam Mizera at adam.mizera@aero.bombardier.com.

We thank you in advance for your cooperation.

Sincerely,

Adam Mizera, Eng. and Lawyer
